BOTH CREW AND D.U.R. BLAMED FOR WRECK OF INTERURBAN CARS

That Lewis Hamilton, D. U. R. motorman, came to his death July 30 as the result of a street car collision for which both the train crew, Forrest Woodin and Frederick Dresselhouse, and the D. U. R. are blamed, was the finding of the coroner's jury at the inquest held Monday. The verdict says:

"We find that Lewis Hamilton came to his death through a head-on collision of two Detroit, Jackson & Chicago trains at about 4:50 o'clock p. m., July 30, 1911, through an error on the part of the east bound train crew operating train 45, car 7771, of the Detroit, Jackson & Chicago railway, and by not having an adequate system in providing a semaphore or double track on the blind curve at the point known as the Duffield residence, located on the Chicago road about 20 rods east of the Duffield crossing."

The arrests were made Monday night of Motorman Forrest Woodin and Conductor Frederick Dresselhouse the crew of the Northville local car which pulled out of the Duffield switch near Dearborn ahead of time on Sunday, July 30, and collided with a westbound Ann Arbor local. They will be given a hearing at 2 p. m. next Saturday, before Justice Samuel Orr of Dearborn, who will decide whether to bind them over to the circuit court. They were released on $1,000 bail.

The coroner's jury held an inquest Monday on the death of Lewis Hamilton, the motorman killed in the wreck. Their verdict divided the blame between the men and the D. U. R. The former were blamed for "an error" in operating their car, and the company was considered culpable "for not having an adequate system of protection."

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Fred H. Aldrich said that, in his opinion, the motorman and conductor, Woodin and Dresselhouse were reckless and that the matter should not be passed over without a further investigation. He thought that it would be hard, in the case of the company, to attach any blame to any particular person.

At the inquest Motorman Woodin testified that he left the switch before he should have done so, but said that he trusted largely to Conductor Dresselhouse, who told him to go ahead. Dresselhouse frankly said that he gave the order, believing that the local had preceded the two sections of the limited, both of which he had seen go by.

Fred Cain, dispatcher at Ypsilanti, and Wm J. Dawson, superintendent of the D., J. & C. railroad, both said they thought no satisfactory safety device or warning light system to prevent cars meeting on a curve had been invented. Supt. Dawson said that a preventative, but this the company had torman Hamilton and was present been unable to secure, for the reason that the land was not for sale at this point, or else was held at too high a figure. Both witnesses acknowledged that, in the absence of any device to warn the train crews, written orders and a regular train schedule were depended upon.

G. W. Dickinson, state railroad commissioner, said he had advised the company fully a year ago to do something to lessen the danger at this curve. He thought that signal lights would have been an additional safeguard at the curve.

Since at the afternoon session Dr. Henry L. Burdeno, who attended Motorman Hamilton and was present when he died was detained on a critical case, the inquest went a mile to the house of his patient. He testified that Hamilton had died with a broken back.

The jury retired at 2:20 p. m. and gave its verdict at 3:45 p. m. The jurors were E. W. Foster, foreman; Fred Foster, Herman Kainbach, Arthur T. Sloss, John P. Prehn and Fred Fukalek.

LA FOLLETTE IS SITTING ON LID

Seems to Be in Control of Tariff Legislation.

NO HURRY ABOUT ADJOURNMENT

Wisconsin Man, It Appears, May Be Delaying Action on Wool and Free List Bills to Force Vote on Cotton Bill

Washington, Aug. 8.—Senator LaFollette, insurgent Republican candidate for president, is still sitting on the tariff lid. He refuses to say when he will get off and permit anything in the way of tariff legislation to escape.

Some of the colleagues of Mr. LaFollette tried to impress on him the importance of taking a good rest. They pointed out to him that he has been overworked, that his health was likely to give way under the strain and that he owed it to the country to assist in expediting the tariff legislation so that he could get back to Maple Bluff farm in Wisconsin for a rest.

"Oh, I am not going back to Wisconsin," replied Mr. LaFollette. "I would like to, but I have at least two months' work ahead of me here in Washington, whether congress adjourns or not."

When this information was spread around the senate it created almost a panic. Some of the regular Republicans admit now they made a tactical mistake when they turned the farmers' free list bill and the wool bill over to LaFollette as the senate's representative in a sub-committee of the conference committee. Some of the regulars thought they had made a clever move when they washed their hands of the tariff legislation. They thought they could point in the future to the fact that whatever compromise measures came out of the conference could be charged solely to the Democrat and insurgent coalition. They did not realize at the time, although they are willing now to admit it, that they placed in the hands of the senator from Wisconsin a power which he was only too eager to wield and which he is now using to direct the tariff legislation along whatever course he may see fit. He is suspected now of delaying action on the wool bill and the farmers' free list bill until he can force a vote in the senate on the cotton bill.

The senator from Wisconsin expressed the opinion that the date of adjournment of congress was, in his judgment, rather remote. He did not talk discouragingly of a compromise agreement with Mr. Underwood, but he did not seem to be in as much of a hurry as some of his colleagues would have liked to have him.

POLICE HIDE IN TREES

Unique Method of Catching Park Pickpockets in Washington.

Washington, Aug. 8. — That trees sometimes bear strange fruit was the conviction of which two picketpockets were forced to when Police Lieutenant Flathers and another officer dropped to the ground from leafy perches and put the men under arrest.

Many reports of robberies of persons sleeping on park benches having reached the officers, they found sleepers late at night, climbed into trees and awaited their game. In due course it appeared, the sleepers were deftly "gone through" and then the officers dropped to earth, catching the culprits red-handed.

LORIMER QUIZ RUSHES WORK

Hearing in Washington Will Be Ended This Week.

THEN RECESS FOR SIX WEEKS

When the Senate Committee Resumes, the Hearings Will Be Held in Chicago—Holstlaw's Testimony Awaited.

Washington, Aug. 8.—With H. J. C. Beckemeyer, former state representative under cross-examination, the Lorimer investigation entered upon the last week of the inquiry at Washington. At the end of this week the committee will take a recess of six weeks and resume the hearings in Chicago about Oct. 1.

Bekemeyer, who on Saturday began a recital of how he "received $1,000 for his vote for Lorimer and an additional $900 out of the 'jack pot,'" was cross-examined by Attorney Haney in an effort to break down his story. The session was brief owing to the vote on the statehood bill in the senate.

Following Beckemeyer, former Senator D. W. Holstlaw, who confessed that he received $2,500 for his vote for Lorimer and $700 out of the "jack pot," will take the stand.

If Holstlaw begins his story Tuesday it may be possible to finish up on Wednesday of Thursday. Attorneys for the committee do not expe to take up a great deal of time with his direct examination, but it is supposed that Attorney Haney will want to cross-examine him at considerable length.

When Holstlaw has been heard a total of forty-seven witnesses will have been examined by the committee. A great many more witnesses remain to be heard and it is possible that the remaining hearings may occupy six weeks or two months.

Robert J. Shields of Duluth, whose testimony is urgently desired by the committee because of his activity in obtaining witnesses for Edward Hines, is the only prospective witness who is known to be trying to escape being subpoenaed. Process servers sent out by the committee have vainly tried to locate him.

CONTRACT FOR BRIDGE READY TO BE SIGNED

The city council took care of a good block of business Monday evening at their regular meeting. Aldermen Moore, Cornwell, Stevens, Thomas, Whitman and McDermott were present, and Mayor Towner was in the chair.

Several petitions were filed for consideration. The first was a well signed grievance with regard to the condition of the M. C. crossing on Cross street and Forest avenue. The petitioners claim they have been unable to accomplish anything with the authorities either of the railroad or of the city thus far and now seek suitable repairs. The matter was referred to the city attorney for action.

Next came a remonstrance from residents on Lincolon street against the construction at this time of a sanitary sewer on that street. Ald. Stevens moved the question be referred to the commissioners of public works.

Over the signature of 50 residents of the fourth ward an electric light was requested on Norris street one block north of Forest avenue. The request was upon motion of Ald. Worden referred to the commissioners of public works.

George W. Hayes was granted permission to move a house from Oak street to his farm in Ypsilanti township; and then the report of Justice

HIRELING THIEF BADLY INJURED

Explosion to Destroy Safe Hurts Him Frightfully.

WORK OF THIEVING CASHIER

Trusted Employe, Who Had Been Stealing Money from Firm for Years, Hires Tough to Burn Office and Books.

New York, Aug. 8.—At the end of a grilling examination in the office of Captain Richards in the Seventh street police station, Jersey City, Samuel Brown, the cashier for the Long Dock Milling company, whose office was set fire to on Sunday night, lost his nerve and told bit by bit to the detectives how he had been stealing money from the firm for months.

Becoming desperate he had hired a man to break into the office and destroy the books which soon would tell of his guilt. The man who did the job, Frank Walsh, a ne'er-do-well, who has been known to Newark police for years as a tough, died in St. Francis hospital, Jersey City, where he had been taken the night before frightfully burned.

The statement involved also Patrick J. Timmins, a public accountant in Newark, and for years a friend of Brown, who is locked up with Brown in the police station.

The office of the Long Dock Milling company, which is a large concern dealing in grain and owning large elevators, is located in a dingy little one-story frame building opposite the huge wooden freight depot of the Erie railroad on Pavonia avenue.

Here Brown with several clerks has been working for eleven years as cashier of the company. A few doors from the little office building is the Erie hotel, a resort kept by Louis Wormser. The saloon proprietor remembers that he saw some men, two of them as he recollects, loitering around the front of the Long Dock company's office at about 9:45 on Sunday night. He though it rather strange, but did not investigate the matter.

At 10:25 o'clock there was a deadened noise heard from the direction of the office building. A milkman who was driving his wagon past the office saw a red glare through the window and broke in the door.

Flames were licking the ceiling. The safe door was open and the gas was burning. A man with his clothes afire was stretched on the floor. The milkman dragged the man out to his wagon and carried him to a hospital. He was unconscious. The skin had been burned off his hands and face, his mouth was half blown away and his eyes were destroyed. The patient displayed remarkable vitality and nerve, however, and to the surprise of the physicians he survived to regain consciousness and tell about the matter.

Brown was arrested later and confessed the whole affair.

KILLED AT A FUNERAL

Woman Struck Dead by Lightning in Wisconsin Church.

Four Other Women Rendered Unconscious Around Bier of Philip Brissel.

West Bend, Wis., Aug. 8.—Mourning for Philip Brissel, whose body lay in a coffin before the altar of St. John's Evangelical church at Kohlville, Mrs. Henry Conrad was struck dead and four other women rendered unconscious when a bolt of lightning pierced the house of worship.

Rev. John Frank was just opening his mouth to begin his sermon when a vivid flash of flame and deafening crash seemed to paralyze for a second the entire congregation.

Pastor Frank's words of compassion for the sorrowing family were never uttered. Instead, his eyes beheld a startling scene. Mrs. Conrad and a dozen other women lay on the floor, the shrieks of terror precipitating a panic which only cool-headed men, hardly yet comprehending the situation, prevented.

In this church the men sit on one side and the women on the other. When the lightning struck the steeple, entered the church and hurled down a chandelier under which sat Mrs. Conrad, the missile from the skies found only feminine victims. The women rendered unconscious were resuscitated and probably will recover.

SPY IN UNITED STATES ARMY?

Recruiting Officer at Indianapolis Makes Charge.

AUSTRIAN UNDER SUSPICION

Probable Object of the Alleged Spy Was to Discover for His Government Composition of a High Explosive.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The war department, for the first time in many years, is perturbed over the case of an alleged spy in the army.

Captain James Watson, the recruiting officer at Indianapolis, Ind., has informed the department that he holds affidavits charging a private, George Peters, with being an Austrian secret agent. The department is considering the charges with a view to determining a course of action.

This is the first case to be brought up under the law passed at the last session of congress to prevent the disclosures of national defense secrets. This act is broad in its provisions and is applicable to all attempts to secure military information improperly.

Any one who endeavors to procure such data can be fined $1,000 or imprisoned for one year or both. If an attempt is made to communicate any secrets of defense to a foreign government the maximum punishment is imprisonment for ten years.

It is not believed that the charges, if well-founded, indicate that the Austrian government, even remotely contemplates future hostilities with the United States. The probable object of the alleged spy was to discover for his government the composition of the remarkably high explosive "dunnite," used in army and navy shells, and said to be far superior to any foreign explosive.

One of the papers in the possession of Captain Watson is an affidavit of Miss Clara A. Dyer, who had previously inquired about obtaining Peters' release from the army. She said Peters was stationed at Fort Totten, N. Y., in the One Hundred and Thirty-fifth company, Coast Artillery corps, and that he was an Austrian spy sent to the United States to obtain the secret of manufacturing the powerful explosive used by the United States government.

Miss Dyer asserted she met Peters on an ocean liner en route from Europe last September, and later during a visit of Peters to her Kentucky home had become engaged to him. The girl turned over a number of letters from Peters in which he told of his plans. Peters' real name, she said, is Count Windisch-Graetz and his home is in Prague, Bohemia.

HENRY MILLER, WHO DIRECTED YPSI OFFICERS TO LOST MONEY MAY CLEAR UP MYSTERY OF CHELSEA MAN'S DEATH OF THREE YEARS AGO

Oscar Lawrence and his past are again brought under public scrutiny by Henry F. Miller, the same man who was instrumental in landing him in his present lodging-place, Jackson prison.

It seems that on Sunday Miller went to see his children who are with their mother, who is divorced from Miller. Incidentally, he told his former wife that she would probably never see him again. Miller has been friendly with Mabel Lawrence, the wife of Oscar, and Oscar, it is alleged, has threatened to kill him when released from prison. It therefore seemed expedient to Miller to leave these parts. Yet he was not averse to dealing Oscar another blow, for he told Mrs. Miller that Mrs. Lawrence had told him a very important thing; namely, that it was Oscar Lawrence and Grant Klein who had killed and robbed Dan Corey who was found dead near the Peninsular Paper mill three years ago. He further told Mrs. Miller that on Monday night, after he had left town, she might go to Marshal Gage and tell him what he had told her.

However, Mrs. Miller did not wait until Monday to avail herself of his permission, having an end of her own to serve. She wanted money of her former husband to help care for their children, and a way to obtain it was now suggested to her. She therefore went over to see Marshal Gage Sunday night and told him all she knew. Consequently Deputy Sheriff Hipp was dispatched into the country and met Miller as he was coming into town with his luggage, ready to take the train.

Miller was taken to Marshal Gage's office and Mrs. Miller was sent for. First, the Miller's own matters were fixed up. He paid down fifty dollars to help take care of the children. Also he had to pay for the costs which had been involved in the Deputy Sheriff's trip into the country.

This done, weightier business was taken up, dealing with his knowledge of the crime perpetrated at the mill.

Miller was then allowed to go, with the promise that he would every two weeks let Marshal Gage know of his whereabouts.

It will be recalled that, at the time of the murder at the mill, this Kline family lived on Railroad street. Mrs. Kline is Oscar Lawrence's sister.

When the murdered man was discovered, his head was wrapped up in a little dress, such as a child of five might have worn. This dress was recognized as one which had been given the Kine family by a lady belonging to a charitable organization in this city. This lady however refused to swear that the dress was the very one which she had given Mrs. Kline, and, therefore, although the evidence was extremely damaging, Kline and Lawrence were not held for the murder. Another fact which had been suspicious was that the murdered man was last seen in Oscar Lawrence's rig going towards Kline's house. Also, whereas before this occurrence, the Kline's had had to be helped by charity, after the date of the murder they appeared to have plenty of money.

However the evidence was not considered sufficiently binding to convict the men and they were not held.

Dan Corey, whose home was in Chelsea at the time of his death had taken the contract of digging a county ditch one mile east of the city on the land of farmers by the name of Hamilton and Wright. On the night of his death he came to town supposedly with a large amount of money. He visited a number of the local saloons and was soon the worse for liquor according to reports and his body the next day was found in the river. Kline and Lawrence were said to have been seen with the murdered man the night of the murder.

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN, FAMOUS BRITISH STATESMAN.

PROBABLY but a small percentage of Americans familiar with the career of Joseph Chamberlain, the famous British statesman who recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, are aware that in 1888 he married an American woman. Miss Mary Endicott, only daughter of W. C. Endicott, secretary of war in President Cleveland's first cabinet, is his third wife. The other two were Englishwomen. Mr. Chamberlain began his political career as mayor of Birmingham. For many years he represented the Birmingham constituency in parliament. He has held several cabinet positions. He clashed with Gladstone on the Irish home rule policy and was bitterly denounced as a renegade by the advocates of home rule. His chief claim to fame in the future probably will rest upon his advocacy of the imperial federation, a closer union of the colonies with the mother country, when he was colonial minister.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1911

It is unfortunate that Justice Randolph, who is himself under fire for protecting the gambling interests, represented in the slot-machines in Detroit, should be the one to go after that larger gambling institution, the blue ribbon races. The notorious gambling which, according to reports, has been going on there every day before thousands of people, without even an apology, compromises the sheriff's office of Wayne county and compels it virtually to admit that it permits gambling in a wholesale manner in one place, while it is making a loud noise about its being permitted by another public official in another place, because Justice Randolph has, according to charges, profited himself through a rake-off for permitting slot machines to fo unmolested and the proprietors unpunished in his jurisdiction.

Detroit is getting a considerable amount of advertising which isn't very advantageous to the city. It is strange that it hasn't found it out already, as Jacksonville, Florida, has found it out during the past winter. Any community which says to the world, "Come here and violate the law as much as you like and you will be protected in it," is hatching out a very undesirable brood of chickens, which are bound to come home to roost.

As the Detroit Times suggests editorially, "When our county officials fall out the law is enforced," and asks, "Wouldn't it be a fine thing for county government if county officials could fall out 365 days in the year? * * * In the meantime Wayne county is paying a sheriff and several deputies and maintaining a jail, in addition to a handsome county building. How do you as a decent citizen like the looks of the mess?"

Justice Randolph has caused the arrest, according to reports, of President Postal, A. A. Chantz and other officers of the racing association and they have been bound over to the circuit. Mr. Postal, when on the state fair board, lowered it to the standard of his bar.

The liquor dealers of Flint are reported as having persuaded one of the aldermen there to introduce an ordinance to "protect saloon-keepers in the sale of liquor to minors or habitual drunkards by making it a punishable offence for a member of either of these classes to apply for liquor in a saloon."

For twenty-five years, in the state of Michigan at least, it has been a serious offence, as defined by the law, for a liquor dealer to sell liquor to either a minor or an habitual drunkard.

The saloon-keeper is in business for profit, and he is willing to sacrifice every other consideration for profit. He certainly wouldn't be in the business for any other purpose. He must have lowered his ideals to the dead line of profit only. And, so long as his ideals are thus submerged, he will continue to use every device which he can, in order to get minors and students into his place of business and cause them to acquire the liquor-drinking habit. If he can once get them started, he knows pretty well that, in the majority of cases, he has them to stay. And he knows that, in a large number of cases, they will stay with him clear down through the toboggan slide of human failure, and so long as they can get a nickel from any source, by any hook or crook, he will take it, in exchange for that which is worse than nothing.

In other words, he will start out deliberately in the business of wrecking human life, and he will proceed deliberately to wreck it; and of course he would have the audacity, the flint heart and the flint nerve, to endeaver to shoulder the responsibility for his completed product upon the slaves whom he has made such. To call this adding insult to injury is certainly to put it in very plain and innocent terms.

A successful state is made up of successful, sober, sane, well-balanced citizens; and the saloons make the opposite of citizens. And the state has to take care of these derelicts in the junk-pile of human debris, found multiplying in the jails and alms-houses and orphan asylums and other eleemosynary institutions. It has tried to stay the ravages of this business amongst its citizenship by passing very good laws (such as they are) and providing machinery for the enforcement of those laws, but that machinery has gotten largely into the hands of cheap politicians and the machinery doesn't work. It doesn't do the business it was made to do so long as there are saloons to corrupt the citizenship of the locality in which they exist.

Claus A. Spreckels, Enemy of the Sugar Trust.

Claus Augustus Spreckels, who gave important testimony before the congressional committee investigating the sugar trust, is head of the Federal Sugar Refining company. For many years he has fought the big combination, and in the course of his testimony he produced letters which purport to show that the trust was a violator of the Sherman law for at least a short time after the enactment of that statute. Incidentally it was developed that Spreckels' fight against the American Sugar Refining company was the cause of an estrangement that separated him from his father and brothers for many years. The family breach came when the Spreckels refinery was permitted to pass into control of the trust.

Claus A. Spreckels, besides being a prominent figure in the sugar business for many years, has been active in the civic life of San Francisco. He took a leading part in the reform movement in that city which resulted in the conviction and imprisonment of Mayor Schmitz and Abe Ruef in 1907.

George W. Perkins, organizer of the International Harvester company, former partner of J. Pierpont Morgan and associated with him as organizer of the steel trust, is said to have received $5,000,000 for his share in the consolidation of the harvester companies. On Aug. 12, 1902, the International Harvester company was organized under the laws of the state of New Jersey with a capital of $120,000,000. It was formed by the consolidation of the McCormick Harvester company, controlled by John D. Rockefeller; the Deering, the Glessner, the Plano and the Milwaukee companies, all engaged in manufacturing agricultural machinery. Later four other companies were absorbed. According to statements made before the Stanley house committee, the International Harvester company is practically in control of the manufacture of farming implements.

Mr. Perkins is chairman of the finance commiteee and a director of the great harvester combine. He is a native of Chicago and is forty-nine years old. He began his career in the life insurance business, becoming chairman of the finance committee of the New York Life in 1900 and vice president of the company three years later.

$48,050,000 IN BONDS.

W. H. Vanderbilt Once Owned Them. Got $160,000 Monthly Interest.

Proof that William H. Vanderbilt, who died in 1885, once owned $48,050,000 in government bonds, on which he received interest at the rate of $1,922,000 a year, has been found in the old treasury records.

The checks made out to Mr. Vanderbilt show the government paid to him $160,000 a month in interest. One of the department statisticians calculated that he received $220 every hour of the day and night and $3.66 2-3 every minute.

More than $2,000,000,000 in redeemed bonds, representing the major part of the government's civil war debt, is being fed gradually to the furnaces in the bureau of engraving and printing. The engineers estimate that the immense sum in old securities will generate about as much steam as two tons of good coal.

All the government securities issued and redeemed between 1860 and 1898 are being thus destroyed, including nearly $1,000,000,000 in the famous 7-30 bonds, which were made in the size of greenbacks and passed as money at the highest rate of interest the government ever paid.

Airship Mutiny.

The man accused of inciting mutiny on the airship was heavily ironed and brought before the captain. "Was he caught in the act?" asked the captain, when he had glared menacingly upon the culprit. "Yes, sir," replied the first mate, "I caught him in the act of tacking up cards bearing the mutinous expression, 'Back to the land.'"

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.

THE LEVELLERS.

There are always some who are dissatisfied with existing conditions, no matter how favorable they may be. Even though such people enjoy a large measure of liberty, they want more, and imagine themselves abused if they do not get it. Oliver Cromwell was called the Great Commoner, yet at one time a considerable portion of his army became mutinous because they thought his government was too aristocratic. They were called "Levellers," because they clamored for a republic based on the absolute equality of all citizens. The Protector of course put them down with his iron hand. But there were "Levellers" before the time of Cromwell. In the sixteenth century a formidable party with that name arose in Germany. The leaders taught that all distinctions of rank are usurpations of the rights of humanity. The uprising assumed alarming proportions, and an army of forty thousand "Levellers" set out to put their doctrines into practice by ravaging the country. The landgrave of Hesse went against this army with his trained soldiers, and seven thousand of the "Levellers" were slain.

ABBEY WAS A FAMOUS ARTIST

Career of the American Illustrator and Painter.

WAS IN HIS SIXTIETH YEAR.

He Painted the Official Picture of the Coronation of King Edward—Planned to Come to This Country When Stricken.

Edwin Austin Abbey, who died recently in London, after John Singer Sargent and the late James McNeill Whistler, was one of the well known members of a group of American painters making England their home. Mr. Abbey's career was possibly less sensational, if by no means less popularly successful, than those of his two distinguished fellow countrymen. His wall panels of the "Knights of King Arthur" in the Boston Public library, particularly the striking "Sir Galahad," are generally familiar. He was commissioned to paint the coronation of King Edward a decade ago, and before his fatal illness he was arranging to come to this country and to his native state to install his last paintings in the capitol at Harrisburg, Pa.

The official picture of the coronation of his majesty King Edward VII. was exhibited during 1903 and 1904. Of the decorations for the state capitol of Pennsylvania about half had already been delivered, the works finished including the eight paintings in the rotunda, which were placed in 1908, and the paintings for the hall of the house.

Mr. Abbey was in his sixtieth year, having been born at Philadelphia on April 1, 1852. He began his artistic education at the Academy of Fine Arts in the Quaker City, and he held honorary degrees of master of arts from Yale and doctor of laws from the University of Pennsylvania. Abbey went to New York in 1871 and was engaged as an illustrator by the Harpers, going to England for them in 1878. He married Mary Gertrude Mead, daughter of Frederick Mead of New York, in 1890. In that same year he exhibited his first picture to be shown in London at the Royal Academy, entitled "A May Day Morning." Other pictures of his early English period and style were "Fiammetta's Song," "Richard III. and Lady Anne," "Hamlet," "O Mistress Mine," "Who Is Sylvia?" "The Trial of Queen Katharine" and "The Penance of Eleanor, Duchess of Gloucester."

Some of His Works.

In addition to the "Coronation of King Edward VII.," for which Abbey won the commission in 1901, he had exhibited at the Royal Academy of that year his "Crusaders Sighting Jerusalem." His "Columbus In the New World" dates from 1906. A reredos for the American church in Paris was completed in the following year. Among many lesser works were Abbey's quaint illustrations to Herrick's poems, as well as to "She Stoops to Conquer," and volumes of "Old Songs" and "Quiet Life," the latter in collaboration with Alfred Parsons, an English artist, and to the "Comedies of Shakespeare." His English country home was at Morgan Hall, Fairford, Gloucestershire, and his town house in London at Chelsea Lodge, Tite street, S. W., near the home of Sargent.

The artist was a member of many associations both here and abroad. Among these were the National Academy of Design, American Water Color society and Society of Mural Painters of New York, the Royal Academy of London and Royal Bavarian Academy. He was a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France, an associate of the Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts, Paris; honorary associate of the Academie des Beaux Arts, fellow of the Society of Antiquaries, associate of the Royal Water Color society, London, and Royal Institute of British Architects, member of the American Institute of Architects and the Society of Artists of Madrid, Spain. Abbey was a member of the Century club in New York, and in London of the Athenaeum, Reform, Arts and Beefsteak clubs, and president of the Artists' Cricket club.

Living Portrait of Mark Twain.

A singular story comes from a small town in Pennsylvania, according to Harper's Weekly. On April 21, 1910, a cow was born on a farm near Alburtis at almost the identical moment when Mark Twain died at his home in Connecticut. On her right side, outlined in dark brown against a snow-white background, is a profile bust of that author. The likeness, which was plain at the birth of the calf, has grown more and more distinct, until it is now impossible to fail to identify the well-known features. Naturally, the cow was named Mark Twain. It is safe to say that the great humorist would have appreciated this joke of Nature at his expense.

Youth and Age.

"Things are never just right in this world," complained old Si Chestnut to the Sedgwick Pantagraph. "When I was a young man I never could buy a buggy with a seat that was narrow enough. Now that I am an old married man I can't find a buggy with a seat that is wide enough to suit me."

LIVELY FIGHTER FROM MEXICO

Jose Rivers Looks Like Featherweight Champion.

HE WHIPPED COSTER EASILY.

This Puts Him In Line For a Go With Abe Attell, and Such a Scrap Would Be Worth While—Mexican Has Hard Punch and Is Good Ring General.

By TOMMY CLARK.

A new featherweight champion possibility has loomed up on the pugilistic horizon in the person of Jose Rivers, the strong little Mexican who has been cleaning up everything in sight in California. Rivers caused a big surprise in the fight world by clapping the lid on the championship aspirations of Joe Coster in twelve rounds at Los Angeles recently.

It takes a mighty good man to stop Coster, who, in addition to possessing a very long reach and no small degree of boxing skill, is looked upon as one of the toughest boys milling in the feather ranks. Not long ago Coster was credited with having had much the best of Abe Attell in a ten round bout before a New York club, and his friends at once began booming him as a possible candidate for first chop honors in the 122 pound class. But Rivers handed him the licking of his life in the recent meet and put him out of running for a chance at Abe Attell's title.

Rivers is the hardest hitter and best natural ring general that the 122 pound division has produced in a decade. He has appeared in the ring about half a dozen times, and every one of his battles has wound up with a victory for him on a clean knockout. Among his victims were Danny Webster and Johnny Reagan, both unusually clever lads, neither of whom was able to do anything to offset the terrific punching power of the dark skinned youth from Mexico.

Now that Champion Abe Attell declares himself rounding into trim again it would make a card well worth boosting to bring him and this new wonder into conflict.

Rivers' friends are already contemplating just such a match, and since the Mexican's knockout of Coster the promoters are after him hotfoot. Somebody, in the natural course of things, must annex Attell's scepter one of these days if Abie stays in the business long enough, and it is likely to be just such a young, strong fellow as this Rivers.

Although many Mexicans have taken to the prize ring, the only one besides Rivers who ever amounted to anything was Aurelio Herrera. He was credited with possessing the hardest punch of any man then performing in the lightweight class. It was a short deadly right, which traveled but five or six inches when the owner shoved it against an opponent's jaw, but a mule's kick wasn't in it for sudden and spectacular effect.

When Bat Nelson was climbing the ladder and just looming up as a championship possibility he met Herrera in a twenty round bout at Butte, Mont. During one of the earlier rounds the Mexican got home with the dreaded right on Bat's jaw, and the latter promptly stood on his head, giving an excellent imitation of a basket of cabbages hit by a motorcar. But, though badly scattered in his senses, Nelson pulled himself together and regained his feet. He clinched the round out and thereafter gave Herrera an awful mauling.

Nelson was given the decision, and the fact that he had outlived one of Herrera's punches without going under had much to do with the reputation he afterward gained as a man of iron.

Herrera also came near putting out Terry McGovern when the latter was in his prime. Terry had been warned of the Mexican's great right, but after a few rounds seemed to have forgotten all about it, when suddenly Herrera let it go and, landing flush on McGovern's jaw, sent him to the canvas. The surprised Terry got up immediately and clinched, and a few seconds after the gong saved him from a knockout. Terry recuperated rapidly and later put the Mexican out.

Herrera might have been a champion if he had only behaved himself, but he refused to be good, and the gay life he led put a finish to his ring career.

Is Jackson Faster Than Cobb?

George Dietrich, secretary of the grand harness racing circuit, says Joe Jackson is faster getting to first base than Ty Cobb or Wilbur Good. He held a stop watch on them, timing each player from the crack of the bat. Dietrich timed Jackson at 2¼ seconds. The best he ever timed Cobb and Good was 2¾ seconds. He has timed Jackson from the plate to second base in 6¼ seconds. Dietrich is an experienced timer.

Phillies' First Baseman Great Batter

Luderus, the Phillies' first sacker, has qualified for the group of prodidious wallopers turned out by Philadelphia, in which are the names of Delahanty, Lajoie, Thompson, Collins and Baker.

Evers May Coach Yale Team.

Johnny Evers may coach the Yale nine next spring.

WHEN CLARKE LEARNED TO APPRECIATE OLD TIMERS.

Manager Fred Clarke of the Pittsburgs was returning after a scouting trip. Besieged by the eager correspondents, the Pirates' leader protested that there was nothing doing—that he had not signed any player or players, that he hadn't talked trades and that he hadn't accomplished anything at all, at all.

"What did you do on your trip?" asked one writer.

"Nothing," was the smiling rejoinder.

"Did you uncover any phenoms?"

"Not any, but I did learn one thing."

"What was that?"

"Why, to appreciate more than ever the players we now have under contract. Say for me that we do appreciate these men, no matter what any person or persons say."

DR. WHITE BRAINY PITCHER.

Chicago Americans' Heaver Relies on Head as Well as Arm to Win.

A successful pitcher of the Doc White type relies more on his head than his arm. Of course, like the Chicago Americans' twirler, his arm must be able to follow the dictates of his mind, and on this alone depends his success. White's pitching when closely studied becomes an art. He is always playing for the percentage to be on his side.

In the first inning of a recent game in Washington with two on and one out he had no intention of taking any chances with Elberfeld, a right handed hitter, so he tried to make him hit at a wide one, with the result that he finally hit him and filled the bases. This put Gessler, a left handed hitter, up, and he was disposed of on strikes. White, like all heady pitchers, never pitches a ball without a purpose. He may err now and then, but when he is being hit it is because the batters are outguessing him.

When pitchers with long years of service are painted Doc White must not be forgotten. Left handers are not supposed to last long, and yet White is seeing his twelfth season of service, and in every one of them he has been a star.

Scout Finds Bird Has Flown.

Billy Murray, former manager of the Phillies and now scouting for the Pittsburg team, has the record hard luck tale of the baseball season to date. Murray traveled 400 miles and after a most uncomfortable journey arrived at the town where he was to look over a promising player, only to find that the team had been transferred to another city the day before.

Majors and Minors About the Same.

"There isn't much difference between the majors and the bushes," says Pitcher Alexander of the Philadelphia Nationals. "People sometimes leave the ball park thinking they are synonymous."

YPSI PASTOR INVITED TO FUNCTION FOR NEW YORK CITY MAYOR

The Rev. William H. Gardam, at the time the attempt was made upon Mayor Gaynor's life in New York City, wrote an article upon the occurrence which came to the notice of the mayor. After his recovery had progressed sufficiently to admit of it, Mayor Gaynor wrote to Mr. Gardam a charming note of appreciation for his article. Apparently this circumstance has been kept in mind and accounts for the following formal invitation which Mr. Gardam has received:

"A Committee of Citizens will present to Mayor Gaynor a loving cup on August 9th, 1911, the first anniversary of the Mayor's providential preservation from the attack made upon his life. The presentation will take place informally at 12 o'clock noon in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall.

"You are cordially invited to attend.

"In the event that you should be unable personally to be present a message by letter or wire, timed to arrive August 8th or the early forenoon ofo August 9th, so as to permit of its being read on the occasion would add interest and significance to the day."

Mr. Gardan has dispatched to New York a letter expressing his felicitations on the occasion and regret that he may not be present.

CONTRACT FOR BRIDGE

Stadtmiller was received and accepted. The justice added $45.60 court moneoy for the month of July to the city treasury.

Several new walks were recommended by Inspector Seymour. They include a stretch on the west side of Hamilton street extended from present cement walk to Catherine street, on the west side of Adams from Buffalo to Harriet, on the west side of Ballard in front of numbers 419 and 413 and it was recommended that the flag stone walks in front of J. P. Kirk's residence and 415 and 423 Ballard be put to grade or new walks built.

Upon the submission of estimate of expense for pavement on East Cross street by North Gass and Son, Ald. Cornwell moved that the bid be accepted and a contract entered into. The motion was sustained.

City Attorney Brown returned his report concerning the building recently erected in the rear of the 5 and 10 cent store and advised that same was placed there contrary to fire ordinances and should therefore be removed by order of the city council. Twenty days were allowed for the removal.

With one opposing vote cast by Ald. Worden and three members absent, an agreement to be entered into between the city and the D., J. & C. Ry. Co., with regard to the construction of a new bridge over the river at Congress street was accepted by the council. The agreement provides among other things for payment of the railroad company of $17,706 as their proportion of the new bridge, the total cost of which is estimated at about $49,000. The new bridge is to be 80 feet six inches wide with a roadway of 66 feet which width will allow a double track to be laid should the interurban company so desire. The contract for building the bridge has been awarded the Carpenter and Anderson company of Grand Rapids at $43,200, the additional cost for road grading, new pavement where needed and incidentals will according to estimate bring the total to about $49,000.

Oil was recommended by the committee as the proper solution to the dust problem on streets in the city that are not paved. Heavy oils or binders were suggested and a tank for storage and a heater were recommended. The report was received and filed. It was also suggested that no street should be oiled until placed in good condition. This matter was tabled, hence the street oiling proposition remains yet to be adjusted.

HUMOROUS QUIPS

She Giggled.

I went out to walk with Miss Nellie one day,
And as we two strolled through the park
I noticed she seemed quite contented and gay—
More happy by far than a lark.
And whenever I made a remark even plain,
She would always a giggle outpour;
And then when I asked her to kindly explain
She giggled—then giggled some more.

Then in the evening we went to the play,
And though 'twas a tragedy deep
She did not the slightest emotion display,
But giggled while others would weep.
She giggled a bit when the hero was killed,
And as the bride came through the door
To marry the villain whose conduct had thrilled,
She giggled—then giggled some more.

So I asked the young lady to tell me just why
Her system contained so much mirth
And how she could giggle when others would cry
And when happiness seemed at a dearth.
So she said her new hat had the latest shaped frame,
The only one like it in store,
And that no other lady could get the same.
Then she giggled—and giggled some more.

—John L. Hobble in Puck.

Obliging.

There's a pretty cashier lady in a certain Boston restaurant. The other day a fresh stranger approached this cashier and asked, "Are the waiters here attentive to you?"

"Sir!" she squealed, and her liquid eyes flashed fire.

"I asked, are the waiters in this place attentive to you?" he calmly repeated. "Are you hard of hearing?"

Then the haughty beauty shouted for the manager, who came on the run. "This pup has insulted me!" she sobbed. "Is it any of his dern business whether the waiters is attentive to a perfect lady or not? I'd like to know if just because I'm a poor working girl a fresh guy can"—

"Now, calm yourself," said the stranger, unabashed. "I am merely being polite and complying with a request printed on your bill of fare. Here it is; read it for yourself."

The line at the top of the menu card read as follows: "Guests will oblige the management by reporting any inattention on the part of the waiters to the cashier."—Boston Traveler.

Dorothy, Delia and Daisy, three youngsters of a New Jersey town, were discoursing about the baby brothers who had taken up their residence in the three families during the past year.

"My little brother Tom's got a lovely silver mug that grandfather just sent him," said Dorothy. "It's a beauty, and he had a silver knife and fork from grandma too."

"My little brother Harry's got a beeyutiful carved rattle that Uncle Dick sent him from Japan," said Delia. "It's the prettiest rattle that ever was."

"My little brother Willie 's not so big as your brothers," said Daisy, with an air of endeavoring to conceal a feeling of triumph, "but the doctor says he's had more spasms than any other baby in this whole neighborhood, so there!" —Lippincott's.

My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. Your Liver Pills have no equal as a cathartic. Any one wishing proof of what your medicines have done for me can get it from any druggist or by writing to me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.
